APPENDIX A -- FUND DEFINITIONS

(for completion of item 3 on page 1 -- Salary Source)

Fund Name	Fund Definition
General Revenue Funds	Appropriated General Revenue Funds.
Other Educational and General Funds	Appropriated funds, other than General Revenue. Includes tuition and fees at general academic and health-related institutions, and at Texas State Technical College System. Includes all General Revenue-Dedicated funds.
Non-Educational and General Funds	Non-appropriated funds, other than federal or private funds. Includes designated funds, auxiliary funds, endowment funds, and restricted funds. Also includes tuition and fees at community and junior colleges.
Federal Funds and Private Grants	Non-appropriated funds from the federal government or from private sources.
Other (Specify)	None of the above funds (e.g., Available University Funds). Please indicate the name of the fund when completing the form. (See note below.)

Note: If the "Other" category is used, please enter the fund name in the space provided on all applicable contribution rate page 1s, including the "All Rates" page 1. Please use the same cell location for each fund on each page 1.

APPENDIX B -- ADDITIONAL INSTRUCTIONS

NUMBER OF PARTICIPANTS

- (1) On page 1, participants must be reported on a simple "headcount" basis (no fractional amounts).
 - (a) Do not report a participant more than once on page 1 (only once per salary source/employer contribution).
 - (b) Participants whose salary is received from more than one fund should be reported on page 1 as "1" in the category that was considered their primary source of matching (e.g., > 50%). If the sources are split 50/50 and one of the sources was General Revenue, report the participant in the General Revenue category.
 - (c) Participants whose sources of funds for salary and employer contributions are not the same should be reported on page 1 in the category from which the employer contribution was paid.

- (2) On page 2, participants may be reported on a headcount basis or an FTE-type basis. If an FTE method is used, the fractional amounts reported for each participant with all companies must add up to exactly 1.00 so that page 2 total participants will exactly match page 1 total participants.
 - (a) HEADCOUNT METHOD:

For the headcount method, participants must be counted in only one company. Participants who transferred companies during the year may be reported in the company that they had the most months or contributions with, or they may be reported in the company that they were with at the end of the year ("snapshot" method). (Note: The FTE method described below in (b)(ii) is preferred for institutions that allow simultaneous contributions to more than one company; however, if these institutions wish to report page 2 number of participants on a headcount basis, participants may be reported in the company that they sent the most contributions to. In the case of a 50/50 split, one company will have to be selected for reporting purposes.)
 - (b) FTE METHOD:
 - (i) For institutions that do not allow simultaneous contributions to more than one company, participants who transferred companies during the year may be reported with the headcount method described above in (a) or they may be reported with the FTE method using a decimal amount for each company they contributed to representing the percentage of months contributed to each company or the percentage of total contributions they remitted to all companies that was remitted to that company, with a total amount for each participant (all companies) of 1.00.
 - (ii) For institutions that allow simultaneous contributions to more than one company, participants may be reported with the headcount method described above in (a) or they may be reported with the (preferred) FTE method using a decimal amount for each company they contributed to representing the percentage of total contributions they remitted to all companies that was remitted to that company, with a total amount for each participant (all companies) of 1.00.

APPENDIX B -- ADDITIONAL INSTRUCTIONS

SALARY AND CONTRIBUTION AMOUNTS

Salary and contribution amounts should always be reported in the fund category (page 1) and company (page 2) as actually paid.

- (1) Salary amounts for participants who have multiple sources of salary should be reported on page 1 in the categories actually paid from and split between categories as needed (as opposed to the headcount method used for number of participants).
- (2) Salary amounts and employer contributions on page 1 for participants whose sources of funds for salary and employer contributions are not the same should be reported in the appropriate categories for salary and for employer contributions as actually paid (split as needed).
- (3) Employee and employer contributions on page 2 for participants who sent contributions to more than one company during the year should be reported as actually paid (split as needed).
