IRB Member
Conflict of Interest Declaration

Any person having a conflicting interest in a protocol must leave the room during discussions and voting on the protocol.

“Conflicting interest” includes in the role as Principal Investigator or Co-Principal Investigator of the project, a financial interest that exceeds $25,000, a personal or fiduciary relationship, or some other situation giving rise to a conflicting interest. Such situations are defined in the Guidelines on Conflicting Interest and related IRB policy.

A member who leaves the room for any reason will not be counted in the quorum for any vote that takes place while the member is out of the room.

The IRB Member Conflict of Interest Declaration should be signed after you have reviewed the agenda, and then updated as necessary during the meeting.
