

Michael R. Spano, MS, L.Ac, DiplOM (NCCAOM)
Acupuncturist, Integrative Medicine Center

Michael Spano has been with the Integrative Medicine Center for over five years. Prior to MD Anderson, Michael had ten years of clinical work with eight years working with integrative health care teams in both public health clinics and hospital settings. In Seattle, he taught at Bastyr University and worked within the King County Public Health system as an integrative practitioner and educator. Michael was also involved in the Washington State acupuncture board with policy and legislation. Michael then spent two years in Geneva, Switzerland as an independent acupuncture practitioner. He recently arrived from the Henry Ford Health System where his responsibilities included patient care and education on integrative acupuncture therapies. Michael continues to be involved with patient care, education and research regarding the role of acupuncture in the integrative cancer setting.
