

Sat Siri Sumler, LMT, BCTMB, MTI
Massage Therapist, Integrative Medicine Center

Sat Siri joined MD Anderson's Integrative Medicine Program in 2003. She is board certified in therapeutic massage and bodywork, a licensed massage therapy instructor and an experienced teacher in the field of yoga. She has specialized in oncology massage since 1991; her training also includes skilled touch for the seriously ill. Prior to coming to MD Anderson, she facilitated the training of yoga and meditation students and teachers from around the world. She lectures at national conferences, has written a Rehabilitation Medicine reference book chapter, and has published articles in the field of oncology massage. Sat Siri co-developed MD Anderson's annual Integrative Oncology Training Conference, a comprehensive continuing education course for acupuncturists, massage therapists, and yoga/mind-body teachers desiring to work safely and effectively with persons touched by cancer. Sat Siri provides oncology massage consultations in the Integrative Medicine Center and also sees inpatients throughout the hospital as part of the Integrative Medicine Consult Service.
