

Ingrid S. Moeller, MA, MT-BC

Neurologic Music Therapist, Integrative Medicine Center

Ingrid initially worked as a music therapist in the Integrative Medicine Center at MD Anderson from 2008-2015 and is very pleased to return to Integrative Medicine once again. A Board-Certified Music Therapist with 20 years of experience, Ingrid also holds the advanced certification of Neurologic Music Therapist-Fellow. In addition to MD Anderson, over the course of her career, Ingrid has treated a broad range of patient populations including geriatric and geri-psych, adult psych in-patients, children, adolescents, and teens on the autism spectrum, children and adults with developmental disabilities, adults with TBI and neurologic needs, children and adults with disorders of speech, and veterans. Well established in her career, Ingrid has presented and been asked to present in her field in front of local, regional, and national audiences, including the Southwest Regional American Music Therapy Association Conference, as well as the National Conference for the American Music Therapy Association. Ingrid initially graduated from Ball State University with a bachelor's degree in Music Performance - Harp, and received her Masters of Art in Music Therapy from Texas Women's University. Around MD Anderson, she has been known as the lady with the harp, or in the words of one of the shuttle drivers, "The Heart Lady." Ingrid is pleased to fill this role once more.
