Medical School: University of California, Irvine, School of Medicine, Irvine, CA

"I enjoy traveling, working on cars, photography, cooking and eating everything, walking my dog, playing tennis or basketball. I have interests in watching sports, fast cars and racing, and family time. MD Anderson is the #1 Cancer Center! It has unlimited resources clinically and for research, different pathways for your unique interests, great work-life balance, fun attendings and awesome co-residents. The location has tons of really good restaurants, it never snows, housing is cheap (relatively), nice sunsets, good music shows and sports teams."

Dario Pasalic, MD - PGY5 Resident

Undergraduate: University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ

Medical School: Mayo Medical School, Rochester, MN

"I enjoy hiking, biking, traveling, writing, photography, all things football, and training/spending time with our dog. My training has always emphasized that the needs of the patient come first, and that philosophy has guided my research and career interests. This includes a focus is on clinical outcomes, valued based care, advancing and applying novel radiation techniques, and finding ways to improve clinical operations. MD Anderson has been everything I hoped to gain from a training program and more. Some of the highlights include multidisciplinary discussions that foster thought-provoking debate and collaborations, institutional resources in the form of grants and support staff, and the prioritization of teaching/education both in and out of clinic. Houston has been a welcome surprise in terms of cuisine, culture, and activities. We often find ourselves exploring and enjoying new experiences that the city has to offer, from Texas barbecue to a night at the theatre. Our favorite outings are Sunday Texans games, Alley Theatre productions, Hermann Park outdoor concerts, and movie nights at IPIC."
